DEPARTMENT OF INSPECTION,
OFFICE OF W. E. BLAKELY, CHIEF INSPECTOR,
INDIANAPOLIS, IND., December 23, 1910.

To the HONORABLE THOMAS R. MARSHALL, Governor of Indiana:

Sir—I have the honor to submit herewith the fourteenth annual report of the Department of Inspection, covering the fiscal year ending September 30, 1910, as required by Section 22, Chapter 142, Acts 1899.

Very respectfully yours,

W. E. BLAKELY,
Chief Inspector.

REPORT OF THE CHIEF INSPECTOR OF THE DEPARTMENT OF INSPECTION.

Your Excellency:

For the year ending September 30th, 1910, seven thousand two hundred and seventeen inspections were made. One hundred and forty-six new establishments were inspected and six hundred and five reinspections made. The number of places inspected consisted of one hundred and eighty-six mercantile establishments, one business block, two churches, five hospitals and sanatoriums, fourteen hotels and lodging houses, twenty-five lodge halls, sixty schools and colleges, three hundred and fifty-seven theaters and moving picture establishments, ninety-nine water craft and six thousand one hundred and forty-eight manufacturing and other establishments; all enumerated in the statistical analysis which forms a part of this report.

It should be understood that this report is based only upon conditions existing at the time the inspections were made. Either before or after inspections the number of employes may have varied slightly. I am inclined to believe, however, that if an average was struck for the entire year the result would be but slightly different.

Many new industries have been added to the list in this State, and the average gain per year, of laborers employed during the last four years, has increased to twenty thousand five hundred and seventy-five, as against an average increase of eighteen thousand during the preceding year. The total number of employes within the State, in the year just closed, was two hundred and forty-eight thousand and seventy-seven; the report of the previous year shows only two hundred and twenty-three thousand one hundred and nine. This is a gain of almost twenty-five thousand and shows conclusively that the manufacturing industries throughout the State have had a prosperous year and are in a flourishing condition.

Of the entire seven thousand two hundred and seventeen inspections made, orders for changes in the different plants, to make them comply with the State law, were issued to four thousand one hundred and seventy-one, or slightly more than fifty per cent. Three thousand nine hundred and eighty-nine of these orders were complied with, a very large percentage. These facts tend to show that the people of the State are interested in the improved conditions that the State is trying to accomplish and that they are lending their help by complying with the laws.

Owing to the meager force of inspectors allowed this department, it is impossible to make a reinspection of every plant each year; only in special cases is a second inspection made. The large number of compliances to orders, mentioned in the preceding paragraph, was brought about by a system of letter inquiries sent out from this office. In every case where an order was sent out it would be followed, in twenty days, by a card of inquiry as to whether or not the recommendation had been complied with. In some cases one inquiry was sufficient, while in others several had to be sent. It is very gratifying to note that in at least ninety-five per cent. of the cases the State laws were obeyed.

The following financial statement fully and accurately accounts for the amounts appropriated for salaries, traveling and office expenses. The report shows all work done by the deputies in their districts, all changes and improvements ordered and their compliances.

ACCIDENTS.

During the past year, three thousand nine hundred and eighty-nine industrial establishments have installed guards for dangerous machinery, saws, planers, elevator shafts, stairways, et cetera, at the suggestion of this department; and all dangerous conditions found in these establishments were remedied. Still, accidents to a certain extent are unavoidable. The total number of accidents reported, this year, were two thousand eight hundred and twelve. These are classified as follows: Fatal accidents, seventy-four; serious, four hundred and thirty-four; slight, nine hundred and eighty-eight; very slight, one thousand three hundred and sixteen.

In comparing the foregoing figures to those of the previous year we find that there has been a slight increase. This is due to two causes, namely: That employers throughout the State have become cognizant of the law regarding the reporting of accidents; their compliance with the law has had its effect on the increase. Secondly, the great increase of manufacturing establishments in Lake County, especially in the steel industry, necessitating a proportionate increase in the number of laborers employed.

This latter fact is conclusively proven in this report, as it is shown that of the seventy-four fatal accidents reported this past year, thirty-two, or forty-three per cent. of the entire number, occurred in Lake County, as have at least thirty per cent. of the serious accidents reported.

The steel industry in Lake County contributes a large number of the accidents. Employment in these establishments is extra hazardous under the best conditions and great care and precaution must be exercised before the percentage of accidents can be lowered. Everything possible, however, is being done to guard all dangerous machines, and printed notices and warnings are placed wherever there is need. The companies themselves have taken up the matter of safety; a number of them have their own departments for looking after the guarding of gearing, shafting, overhead-cranes, all revolving shafting and wheels, dangerous passageways, et cetera. The great per cent. of serious and fatal accidents were not caused by machinery. Still this does not mean that the inspection of machinery must be overlooked, for were it neglected, the probabilities are that carelessness and inattention would soon have their effect, and the number of accidents would again be on the increase. In one plant alone, in this State, four men are employed to look after the guarding of every possible danger. In this plant, during the last year, in spite of every possible precaution, one hundred and fifty accidents occurred. The majority of them are either almost unavoidable or precipitated through carelessness. Of this entire number, not one has been caused by exposed gearing, as is often the case. The principal causes were moving cranes, electrical devices, hot flue dust, falling iron and other material, furnace gas, molten metal and rolling-mill accidents. This will show that the guarding of dangerous machinery has almost reached a stage of perfection in this plant and the unavoidable accidents kept at a minimum.

There are parts of working machinery, however, that it is almost impossible to guard by the use of any known appliance. Here the employes must exercise due care. Some laborers show an extreme negligence and a reckless disregard for danger in operating these machines. Some insist on oiling pulleys, gears and shafting while in motion; a slight slip and they may lose a hand; should their clothing become caught in a set-screw or gear it might mangle the whole arm or inflict fatal injuries. Until such practices as these have ceased, the employer may labor unceasingly and still be powerless to prevent accidents.

It would seem wise for the employer to discharge all careless persons employed, or any one persisting in wearing loose clothing or large sleeves that are apt to catch in gears or on set-screws. The same measure should be applied to female employes who have so little regard for their personal safety as to wear their hair otherwise than tightly and carefully bound.

As a rule, employers have not been remiss in their duty regarding safety appliances. Some few, however, will comply with the orders of this department only under compulsion, where others comply from the standpoint of humanity.

The number of accidents reported by this department cannot be taken as a complete census of all accidents happening in the State. It includes only those accidents which occur in those establishments over which this department has jurisdiction. Railway accidents, mine disasters and various other accidents not required by law to be reported to this department are not compiled and are not included in this report.

BOILERS.

Again we would call attention to the inspection and care of boilers. Too much cannot be said about the boiler, when one stops to consider the enormous amount of energy stored up in one of these vessels. It is a fact that a great many people operating boilers have but a limited knowledge on the subject, and it is to this class of operators that attention is called.

The present year has witnessed the following number of boiler explosions with serious and fatal injuries:

One firebox boiler of fifteen horsepower, located in Perry County, operating a grist mill, exploded, killing a boy and injuring two men. A vertical-tubular boiler of fifteen horsepower, used in a coal mine at Brazil, exploded, inflicting one serious and three slight injuries. Another vertical boiler of eighteen horsepower exploded at the plant of Harris & Prosch, at Terre Haute; fortunately no one was injured. One horizontal firebox boiler of twenty-five horsepower, operating a sawmill in Scott County, exploded, killing one man and injuring another; while a horizontal tubular of fifty horsepower, used only for steam drying, by Witham & Bowen, in a planing mill at Union City, exploded, injuring one man and completely wrecking the building. A ruptured tube in a water tube boiler at Terre Haute let go, injuring three men, while a blow-off pipe on a boiler in Evansville blew off, scalding one man severely. Several heating boilers, two of them in churches, have exploded, but fortunately no one was injured. The total results of these explosions were two men killed and eleven injured.

Of the entire number of boilers that exploded but one report of inspection had ever been sent in to this office, and that report was made and sent in, presumably, after the boiler was no longer used for propelling machinery. Two of the boilers, one operating a grist mill and the other a sawmill, were from ten to twenty miles from any railroad. Such places as these are practically out of the reach of the inspectors, as it is almost impossible to obtain their exact location, and we are also handicapped by lack of a sufficient force of inspectors to cover the State in a thorough manner.

The presumption is, after having investigated the above explosions, that had those boilers been thoroughly inspected, there is no doubt but that recommendations would have been made precluding the possibility of an accident. All of these boilers were very small, comparatively speaking, with the exception of one, and it was only of medium size; yet the energy stored up in them ranged from two hundred and fifty to nine hundred tons. Think what it must be in the larger boilers that have a destructive energy of over two thousand tons. Is it to be wondered at that a thorough inspection of all boilers, that generate steam for any purpose whatsoever, should be made so long as a high pressure is maintained?

The following list of boiler reports was sent in by boiler insurance companies, engineers and boiler makers, competent by law to make inspections:

Reports on boilers by insurance company	5,140
Number of recommendations for changes	1,484
Number of new boilers recommended	58
Reports on boilers by engineers and boiler makers	1,520
Number of recommendations for changes	182
Number of new boilers recommended	2
Number of boilers ordered inspected by this department	430
Number of new boilers ordered by this department	60

The present law does not require that a copy of the boiler inspector's report be sent to this office, but that a copy be kept on file at the plant, to be shown the inspector on demand. The reports on boilers made by the insurance companies were sent to this department by request, while the reports made by engineers and boiler makers were only sent in by managers of plants when requested to do so by this department. If the inspection reports of all boilers belonging to firms visited by this department were sent into this office semi-annually, as we believe they should be, we would have on file at present ten thousand four hundred and eighty-two, and those from industrial institutions only. Had reports been sent in on all boilers in the State, carrying more than eight pounds of steam, regardless of their use, there would be at least double the foregoing number on file.

We do not criticise the inspections as made by a majority of engineers and boiler makers, yet a great many reports that come in from engineers plainly show their inability, or else a great carelessness in filling out the reports. The only conclusion to be arrived at is, is the man competent to make such inspections? A large number of the reports that come in simply say, "There is a slight scale," when, as a matter of fact, almost all boilers have in them more or less scale. Very few reports recommend that old tubes be replaced by new, or state that the tubes were leaking and needed rolling, or that fire cracks were noticed, or that corrosion was taking place, or a patch needed to be put on, et cetera.

This department does, however, condemn the practice of engineers inspecting their own boilers, or the ones they operate, and believe that it would be much better were an outside party to make the inspection; some one who has no material interest in the plant. Sometimes engineers are called upon to inspect the boilers they operate and to fill out the reports against their will, occasionally at the peril of losing their positions. Something should be done to make this impossible.

Again, what disposition should be made of boilers that are used in factories for drying, steaming or heating, but do not come under the jurisdiction of this department because they do not generate steam for the propelling of machinery? Why should they not be inspected the same as boilers that are used to propel machinery? What and where is the difference? Then again, what about the number of boilers throughout the State that are used for heating purposes in office buildings, schools, colleges, theaters, hotels, hospitals and apartment houses? Why should we eliminate them from an inspection just because they do not propel machinery?

After all is said, the fact still remains that all boilers carrying the same pressure, irrespective of their use, are very dangerous, all having the same power and destructive energy.

As a practical illustration, we refer to the boiler that exploded at Union City. This boiler was only of medium size, as it was used for drying purposes only, and did not come under control of this department for that reason. It was about twenty-eight years old, diameter fifty-two inches, length sixteen feet, and known as a horizontal tubular boiler, safety valve set at sixty pounds, according to the engineer in charge. A pressure of over nine hundred tons was being exerted on this shell. Was the steam gauge correct? Was the safety valve in good working order? Was it safe to carry sixty pounds pressure, considering the age and other conditions? Who knows. The conclusion we arrive at is this: Had the boiler been inspected by a practical man, considering age, wear and tear, the chances are that it would have been condemned for all practical purposes.

There were four prosecutions this year for failure to have boilers inspected as ordered by this department. Eight other cases were filed and verdicts rendered, but too late for this report. Two cases are pending in court at present.

In conclusion, we would recommend that all boilers generating steam, used for any purpose whatsoever, where over eight pounds of steam is required, be inspected semiannually. Second, that a boiler inspection means internal as well as external inspection, wherever possible. Each boiler shall be provided with three gauge cocks and, further, that no owner, lessee, agent or operator shall be permitted to make the semiannual inspections required by law. That a copy of said inspection be kept on file at the plant where the inspection was made, and that another copy be mailed to this department, so that wherever changes are necessary, can be so ordered. As it is impossible for our small force to make more than one inspection each year. The importance of such a recommendation can be readily seen.

CHILD LABOR.

Much has been said upon this subject in this State and but little accomplished. It is a subject requiring much study and is so broad and deep, and at the same time so near to our hearts, that we seem to think to enact laws in haste will be to repent them at leisure. The great and crying need, however, for new and better child labor laws in this State is very urgent. Other States have enacted legislation on this subject, then why should not Indiana give the children the same protection they receive elsewhere?

The law that stands at present is, in many respects, a good one; still there are many places that are in dire need of improvement. The law specifies that no child between the ages of fourteen and sixteen shall be employed in any manufacturing or mercantile establishment, laundry, renovating works, bakery or printing office without the proper age affidavit; and that no child under the age of fourteen shall be employed in like places as above mentioned. The law also states that children under sixteen, who cannot read and write simple sentences in the English language, shall not be employed.

Taking up the latter statement, we find that the school age for children is from six to fourteen years. After children become fourteen years of age, it is impossible to keep them in school. It is also, according to this law, impossible to keep them employed if they cannot read and write. (This relates principally to alien children.) If they can neither go to school nor go to work, then what can they do? Assuredly nothing that will be of any benefit to either themselves or the State. Should not this law be changed, and either make the school age limit sixteen years, or else allow the child to be kept out of idleness, which only leads to mischief, then evil, then crime?

Now to take up that part of the law which states where this department has control over children between the ages of fourteen and sixteen. It will be seen that hotels, telegraph and telephone companies, messenger service, shoe-shining parlors, bowling alleys and other similar industries are omitted. Why should one child fourteen years of age not be allowed to work in a mercantile establishment, without the proper age certificate, while another child of twelve or thirteen years is permitted to perform messenger service at all hours, or work until eleven o'clock at night in a shoe-shining parlor or bowling alley? The best law, under all circumstances, it seems to me, that could be passed, would be one that exempted no occupations save farm work and domestic service.

Other States have the eight hours per day law, with no more than forty-eight hours of work per week for the children. Indiana has a ten hour law, with sixty hours per week. Should we expect the child to labor as long and as hard as a grown person? Are there not many labor unions that have obtained an eight hour day for themselves? Yet we let the child labor ten long hours.

Another subject which should not be overlooked, while upon the child labor subject, is the providing of a proper penalty for parents or guardians found guilty of wilfully swearing out false affidavits concerning the child's age. The present law is entirely too severe, and has only been enforced to the extent of having the child discharged, the affidavit taken up and the parent censured. Should we prosecute the maker of the affidavit the result would be a penitentiary sentence and the taking away for a year, at least, the main support of the family. There should be a statute in this State similar to the one in Pennsylvania, whereby a fine and jail sentence might be imposed. In Pennsylvania during the past year, ten cases were prosecuted for swearing out false affidavits. A fine and jail sentence were imposed in each case. These, however, were suspended by the court on account of the poverty of the defendants. The effect was the same as if the fine had been collected and the jail sentence suffered, as the wrong-doers themselves, as well as the entire community wherein they lived, took warning from the publicity given each case.

Attention is called to the fact that but few of the children employed in the State are orphans, or the children of widows. The great majority have both parents living.

In Louisiana there is a Child's Labor Committee, which is doing a wonderful and beneficial work for humanity. The following paragraph, taken from the report of the Factory Inspector of New Orleans, will explain their work:

"Wherever it is found that a family would really suffer if deprived of the child's wage, the Louisiana Child Labor Committee has supplied the wage, providing the child attends school regularly and is studious and exemplary in conduct. During the past year fifteen boys and girls have been kept in school by this society. Some of these were the children of widows, others had both parents living, but sickness and disability made it impossible for the father or mother to earn sufficient wages for the support of the family. In such cases the State must be awakened to its responsibility and make some provision for the father or mother, who, through sickness or death, is unable to provide for the little ones. The State needs properly-fed and decently-reared children far more than it needs soldiers, and if we can provide for the maintenance of a militia and pensions for veterans, we can provide for mothers whose support has been removed through circumstances over which they have no control. Society has no right to shift the burden to the shoulders of little children."

Almost the same idea as the foregoing is being carried out in Louisville, Kentucky. There they have a committee which acts in a similar manner, and wherever they find conditions needing help, they pay to the parent of the child the amount of the wage he would be capable of earning and still keep the child in school. This is certainly a most laudable work, and in view of the fact that the South has been criticised for its laxity in the past, in regards to the child labor problem, praise is certainly deserved for the taking of a step far in advance of any of the Northern States. It certainly seems that here is an opportunity ready and waiting for the corporate towns in the State, the State itself, or a philanthropist; looking to see where the greatest good can be done for the greatest number. What a wonderful work could be done, what an improved class of citizens the State would have in the future, without taking into consideration the fact that we are but following out the one thing really worth while, the maxim, "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you."

The statistical table shows that the number of children employed in six thousand one hundred and forty-eight mercantile and manufacturing establishments during the year 1909 and 1910 was five thousand nine hundred and four. Of this number one thousand three hundred were employed in the glass and canning factories throughout the State. The total number of employes in the State was two hundred and forty-eight thousand and seventy-seven. Of this entire number only two and three-tenths per cent. were children between the ages of fourteen and sixteen. The preceding year the per cent. was one and eight-tenths. A compilation of the two years shows an increase of one-half of one per cent. We account for the increase in this way: During the year, one hundred and forty-six new establishments were inspected. We also made it an especial object to inspect all the canning factories in the State during their busy season. These factories employ a large number of children. The heavy season for them is the summer months, and at this time, as the children are taking the summer vacation, a large number avail themselves of this fact and work during the summer months.

Seventy-six cases for child labor law violations have been tried and each case has been a victory for the State. The total fines and costs amounted to eight hundred and four dollars and thirty-six cents. The violations for which the cases were tried were: Employing children under the age of fourteen years; employing children without the proper age certificates; employing children more than ten hours per day, or more than sixty hours per week; and permitting a young person under the age of eighteen to operate an elevator. In many cases, especially in Indianapolis, the Truancy Department has been a great help to us in discovering the violators of this law.

This State, as I have mentioned before, has only five Deputy Inspectors. One has charge of Marion County; the other ninety-one counties are divided up among the remaining four deputies. This makes a territory so great that it is utterly impossible, except in special cases, to make any attempt at reinspecting plants during the year. This being the case, would it not be an easy matter for a child, illegally employed in any establishment, after having been discharged at the instigation of an inspector, to return to work after his departure, knowing himself to be safe for another year? It is to be hoped that provision will be made to give the proper care to these matters that they deserve, when new laws are enacted.

FIRE ESCAPES.

Fire escapes were erected during the past year on one hundred and twenty-one structures; the statistical analysis shows the number and character of them. This is only about thirty per cent. of the number of escapes ordered under the old law that was changed by the Legislature, two years ago, the enforcing of which was taken out of the hands of this Department and placed in the hands of the fire chiefs and township trustees of the several cities and towns of the State.

This was done at the solicitation of the commercial travelers of the State, who firmly believed at that time they would secure better protection from fire in the hotels throughout the State. In talking with a number of commercial men, as well as some of the members of the last Legislature, they agree with me that a grave mistake was made and think that the fire escape law should again be placed in the hands of this Department.

Under the present law very little has been accomplished by the fire chiefs; local politics evidently interferes to some extent with the enforcement of the law. While conversing with one of these officers recently, he pointed out one particular building which, he said, needed a fire escape and was dangerous without one. I asked him if that was the case, why he did not order the escape erected, as the law required. His answer was, "Why, I can't do that; the owner of that building is a member of the city council, and I would lose my position." Similar cases have occurred in other cities. In a great many of the small towns the fire chief is a business man, and is afraid of making enemies, and, consequently, does not enforce the laws. There are, however, a few chiefs who have tried to do all that the law requires and credit should be given them. Yet there are others who have given exemptions against the erection of escapes when they were badly needed.

I have in mind a particular case of this kind. A fire chief gave an exemption for a fire escape, and at the same time he was the one to report this building to a deputy of this Department, with the statement that the building was a fire trap. It had only one stairway, and in case of a fire, while the building was occupied, many lives would be lost. This same building burned about 1:30 o'clock one morning; had it burned four hours sooner many would have lost their lives, and no doubt this department would have been censured for not compelling the erection of the escape we ordered. This was impossible, however, in view of the fact that the fire chief had given an exemption.

The same fire escape law was so changed in the wording as to destroy its efficiency when applied to lodge halls. Wherever we have tried to compel the owner of a three-story lodge hall to erect a fire escape, we were informed by the prosecuting attorney that the law was faulty and could not be enforced. I would recommend that the coming Legislature restore the former law, changed in such places as are necessary, and again place it in the hands of this Department for enforcement.

While on the subject of fire escapes and other safety appliances, I would call attention to the methods employed in a certain factory in this State, where over six hundred people are employed. This firm has the best arrangement in case of fire that I am aware of anywhere. They have an electric fire signal on each floor of their five-story building, that tells exactly on which floor the fire is located. Their fire escapes are all counterbalanced stairs to the ground, and in addition to them, they have large stairways in different parts of the building, and fire drill is held once every two weeks. This system will go a great way in checking a stampede or undue excitement when an alarm of fire is sounded, as the employes immediately know what floor the fire is on, and, being familiar with the fire drill, know exactly what exits to use, and can easily make their escape. It would be well for other firms, employing a large amount of help, to follow the example of this establishment.

I believe that fire drills should be held in all factories, as well as in all schools, so that every one might become familiar with the means of escape. Some people are naturally timid about the use of fire escapes, and for this reason drills should be held, so that they might become more expert in the use of them. This would prevent a calamity like that which happened in a manufacturing plant in the city of Newark, New Jersey, lately, where twenty-five lives were lost.

THEATERS.

In the past year there has been a marvelous growth of the five and ten-cent vaudeville shows and moving picture theaters. These small play houses generally occupy some storeroom, and many of the lessees are very lax about the arrangement of the room, just so long as they can obtain a large seating capacity, and room enough for the operator's cage. The room generally used is in the center of a business block, with the original store exit, about three feet in width. These rooms are generally deep and narrow, permitting of but one aisle, and that, as a rule, too small to permit of proper exit. About ten feet from the front entrance they usually build a partition across the entire room. In this they cut two doors, one at either side, from four to five feet in width, placing the operator's cage in the center. One of the doors is used for an entrance and the other for an exit. The operator's cage is always directly over the main entrance and ticket office, and is generally built of pine flooring. Some few are built of steel, while others are made of nothing but common canvas. The danger here lies in the fact that the films used are highly inflammable, and if fire once started in a small room, such as is generally used, with a number of women and children in the audience, a panic would ensue, in which many lives would be lost and injuries sustained.

Whenever an inspector calls attention to the manner of constructing these exits, and the location and structure of the operator's cage, the reply is generally, "Why, look! We have plenty of exits; we have two five-foot doors." The real fact, however, is that they have only the one original three-foot main door, and it usually opening inward. They will also say that the films are absolutely fireproof, when, as a matter of fact, they will burn. As a rule, it takes very little to start a panic in a theater or other place of amusement where a crowd is assembled, and it can be easily seen that a little smoke from the operator's wooden or canvas cage would cause such a disturbance.

A number of complaints have been received by this department, asking for relief from these places, and I can say without exception that all state that they are veritable fire traps. Only yesterday I received a letter, telling of the bad condition of these establishments in a certain city, and picturing them as I have in the forepart of this article. The suggestion is made by the writer of this letter, "that no business of this nature should be permitted to occupy a room in the center of any business block, but should be compelled to use of a room on the corner of a street or alley, where they could have a side or rear exit."

There is no law governing this class of play house. It would be well to pass an act making the operator's cage thoroughly fireproof and licensing all operators. Indianapolis has taken this matter up and passed an ordinance concerning them. But to protect all the patrons in every town and village there should be a law governing them. This has been done in many of our sister States.

The Indiana law governing the erection or remodeling of all play houses or theaters, as it stands today, is a model law with one exception. Section 4, Chapter 166, of the laws of 1905, is woefully weak in dealing with buildings now in use for theatrical purposes but erected prior to the passage of this act. That part of the section in question reads as follows: "The provisions of this act shall not apply to any building now in use for theatrical or operatic purposes, but is intended to include all buildings to be hereafter erected or remodeled for theatrical or operatic purposes." Section 11 of the same act, providing the penalty for non-compliance, is also at fault, stating in part, "erected or remodeled after the passage of this act." This should also be changed. Section 2 of this act also is not quite clear and different opinions are held as to how it should be construed. This section reads in part: "Every theater, opera house, or other building accommodating three hundred persons shall have at least two exits. When accommodating five hundred persons, at least three exits shall be provided." Many people construe this to mean that only one exit is needed where less than three hundred persons are accommodated. We think, however, that it should state, "any number up to three hundred."

The above act completely forestalls any attempt on the part of this department to condemn a building (no matter what its present condition may be), that is being used for theatrical purposes, providing it was in operation before the above law was enacted. The majority of theaters, in use prior to 1905, when this law was enacted, are fire traps and at present it is out of our power to remedy this condition.

To cite an instance that came under our observation: We found a theater on the second floor of a two-story frame building. Below this theater was a livery stable, and directly back of the stage was a haymow. In case of fire in this building during a performance, the loss of life would be appalling.

We have no jurisdiction over the above case, because the theater was operating prior to the law of 1905. The only course open to us is to recommend that such precautions as are necessary should be taken. But should our recommendations be complied with, they are done so only through the co-operation of the owner of the building, and not because of any law on the books at the present time.

We would respectfully recommend that Section 4 and Section 11 be modified so as to include all buildings now in use, or to be erected or remodeled in the future, for theatrical or operatic purposes. Also that Section 2 be changed, so that it may be construed as above suggested.

PROSECUTIONS.

Since the closing of the last fiscal year, eighty-six violators of the law have been prosecuted by this department. In every case a finding has been made for the prosecution and fines and costs paid by the defendant. Three other cases have been filed and are now pending.

The majority of the cases filed have to do with the violation of the child labor law. Of the entire eighty-six cases prosecuted, seventy-six have come under this law. Twenty-eight cases for the employing of children, under the age of fourteen years, were tried, with finding for the State, and fines and costs amounting to three hundred and one dollars and forty cents levied. Forty cases were prosecuted for employing young persons, between the ages of fourteen and sixteen years, wthout proper age certificate; verdict rendered the State in each case, with fines and costs totaling four hundred and sixteen dollars and sixty-one cents. Seven cases were filed for employing young persons, under the age of eighteen, more than ten hours per day, or more than sixty hours per week. All verdicts rendered for the State, with total fines and costs of seventy-five dollars and sixty-five cents. One case was filed for permitting a young person under the age of eighteen years to operate an elevator; fines and costs levied, eleven dollars. For the refusal to guard dangerous machinery, one case was tried, with fines and costs of twelve dollars and forty-five cents. One case for the refusal to comply with the order of the Chief Inspector; one case for refusing to install exhaust fan and blower system; two cases for neglecting to use a fire resisting curtain, exit lights and warning signs; four cases for neglecting to have boilers inspected, and one case for refusing to have inland water craft inspected. These were all prosecuted. The verdict in each case was rendered for the State, with fines and costs amounting to two hundred and three dollars and fifteen cents. The total amount of fines and costs received by the State amounted to one thousand and twenty dollars and twenty-six cents. This is more than double the number of prosecutions of the previous year and almost double the amount in fines. Eight additional cases were filed during the year, and verdicts rendered, but at too late a date to be entered in this report. Seven false affidavits were taken up and the children discharged.

NEEDS OF THIS DEPARTMENT.

In order that this Department may carry on its work more effectively, and be as strict in the enforcement of the law as the people expect, we respectfully request that the force of deputies be increased to at least double its present size, including two female inspectors.

The marvelous growth of the capital city, both as to population and civic industries, necessitates a closer supervision than formerly. We have at present but one inspector to look after the entire city. At the same time, it must be remembered, that all the other large cities of the State are growing proportionately, many new manufacturing plants locating in them. The cities of Gary and Hammond, as well as the other cities of Lake County, are growing at a marvelous rate. Many large plants, at the present time, are in the course of construction in the city of Gary. These will employ thousands of workmen when finished. This county, together with twenty-one others, is covered by one inspector. This is entirely too large a territory for one inspector to cover. A county like Lake, with its vast iron industries, should have at least one deputy, if not two. This territory should be looked after frequently in order to get the desired results. The list of accidents in this county alone requires special attention. With more frequent inspection, following up all accidents carefully, something might be done to reduce their number.

New York State has a chief, with two assistants, fifty-one field deputies and forty-five other attaches. Pennsylvania has a chief, one chief deputy and forty-one other deputies. Ohio has a chief and forty deputies. Illinois a chief and forty deputies. All these States have their territory so arranged that each deputy is able to cover his particular field once every three months. This, in my judgment, is the proper way, but altogether impossible in this State with our present force.

CONCLUSION.

It is with deep gratification that I commend the loyalty of each person connected with this Department of the State Government. I am sure that each one has endeavored, to the best of his ability, to do his duty in such a way as to produce the most commendable results. How well we have succeeded is left for others to judge.

(Signed) W. E. BLAKELY,
Chief Inspector.
